

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY according to ČSN EN ISO 14001

The basis of environmental care is an effective environmental management system (EMS). When building and developing this system in the business environment of our company, we will:

- continuously improve environmental management processes and the environmental profile in accordance with the latest technical and scientific knowledge, customer requirements and public expectations,
- comply with and actively apply the requirements of legal regulations and other requirements, especially binding ones, adopted for the field of the environment,
- strive to ensure that the products and services we supply are environmentally friendly, respect the principle of sustainable use of natural resources and at the same time permanently minimize the risks of emergencies that would endanger human health, property and the environment,
- promote that the principles of this environmental policy are gradually applied by our suppliers of products and services so that they comply with our environmental criteria,
- systematically prepare and motivate our employees to carry out their activities in an environmentally responsible manner,
- communicate on an ongoing basis with authorities, local governments, customers or the general public on environmental issues, with the aim of improving the environment.

For the application of the principles of environmental policy, the company's management creates the necessary conditions, provided that the living conditions in the immediate vicinity affected by our activities are improved, as well as for increasing the competitiveness of our products and services in the market environment.
